VAIO Corporation (Head office: Azumino, Nagano Prefecture; President: Yoshimi Ota) has entirely focused on getting the business off the ground in the domestic market since its foundation on July 1, 2014. But today we are pleased to announce that we are moving into the overseas market to further expand our business. The markets we have selected as a first step to make inroads into are the United States of America and Brazil. While steadily increasing our domestic business, we will expand our business in the international markets by finding the best partner in each country.

[Background and overview]
To make a foray into the two markets, we will take on the challenge of promoting new business models that fit the characteristics of each market.

The US: We intend to establish the presence of VAIO in the US, the world’s largest creator market, by launching the VAIO® Z Canvas, the prototype model which was highly evaluated at the “Adobe Max 2014,” the creativity conference organized by Adobe last year. Taking this as a good opportunity, we will expand our PC business in the US, not limited to the creator market. We concluded an exclusive distributor agreement with transcosmos America Inc., which has an extensive track record in EC support both at home and abroad.

Brazil: We formed a partnership with Positivo Informatica S.A., a manufacturer and marketer of its original PCs, providing overall related services, which has established a firm position in the PC market in Brazil. We will jointly work on a vertical startup of our VAIO business in the Brazilian market, the largest market in South America. We will entrust to the partner the overall business in Brazil including manufacturing PCs labeled with the VAIO trademark.

Regarding our decision of overseas expansion, we received comments from various companies.

- Intel corporation
Christopher J. (CJ) Bruno, Corporate Vice President and President, Intel Americas Inc.
“We are excited to support the launch of the VAIO PC in the United States. We also want to congratulate POSITIVO’s role in bringing the VAIO PCs to Brazil, adding to the wide range of Intel-based devices that the company is already bringing to consumers in the country. The VAIO PCs are based on the Intel® Core processor family and the Intel® Iris™ Graphics, providing great performance with long battery life and an immersive graphics experience for people who want to be creative both at home or office.”

- Microsoft corporation
Alvaro Celis, Vice President, WW OEM Field Sales, Microsoft Corporation
“We are excited to see Windows 10 VAIO devices coming to the United States and Brazil. With new hardware designs and new features in Windows 10, these new devices will provide rich new experiences to consumers and business-focused capabilities to companies of all sizes.”
